...'Mid Texas pines
(One day some will die, one day more will grow)

we have found peaceful shrines
(One day we'll all appreciate them)

where ev'ry month is May...
(One day in a year feels like winter)

...As years unfold
(One day we'll all look back)

happy mem'ries we'll hold,
(One day seems like yesterday)

All hail to SFA.

Studying — Nothing is more dreaded among college students; nothing is done more grudg ingly, than the daunting task of keeping up with the overwhelming load of information you're expected to remember. But it is a means to an end, isn't it? The more you study, the better your grades. The better your grades, the more attractive your resume. And the more attractive your resume, the better job you can get. One day, it'll all be worth it...

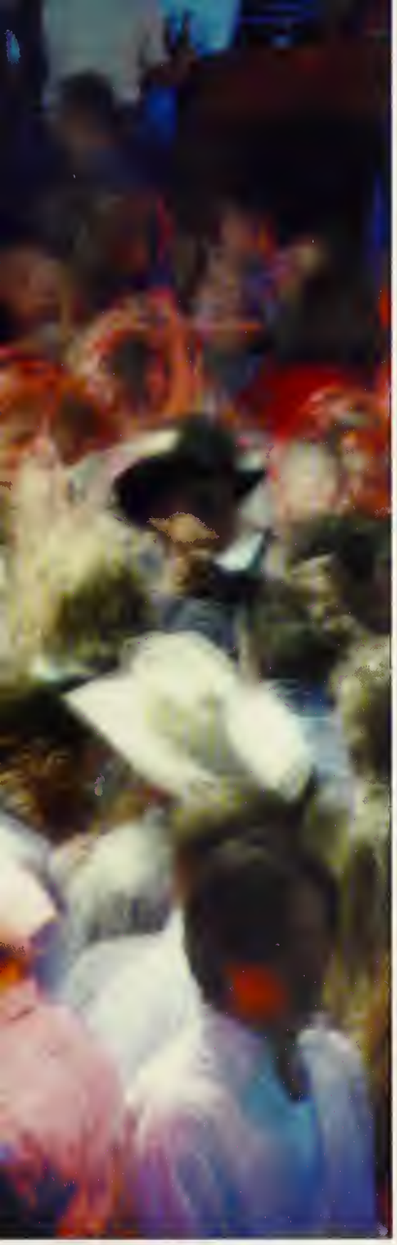
Party time — After the stress of classes, meetings, work, etc., it's nice to unwind and let loose a little bit toward the week's end. Though not known for its intense night scene, Nacogdoches does offer more than a few places in which to indulge whatever your form of escapism. Might as well enjoy it now, one day, you'll probably be too old...

Party



Jitterbugs seems to be the party place of choice for Thursday nights. In these photos, students talk, dance and drink away the past week of school, looking forward to the coming weekend.

Work

Work — Hate it or love it, it's some thing most of us have to do anyway, a necessary evil. But the money earned helps pay for school, which hopefully one day will lead to the greaner pastures promised on the other side...

Playtime — What with all the study ing and working going on, there's got to be some downtime every now and then. The activities students participate in are as diverse as the students themselves, and there's always something to do for those creative enough to figure it out. You know the old addage, "All work and no play makes Johnny a dull boy." Breaking away from the routine is perfectly acceptable , almost necessary, even if just for one day...

Love — One day, we all hope to find it, and much of our time is spent during our college years searching for it. It can be found in classrooms, the library, the prettiest scenic areas and the darkest, dankest clubs. But no matter where, when or how it comes, we hold on to it in hopes that one day...

Spirit — They say the spirit is indominable. They say the spirit is a force to be reckoned with. To show your spirit is to show the pride you possess for the school you chose to attend. It is to show your love and support. One day the spirit may fade, but think gloom that would bring to this setting. Don't let the spirit fade...

Diversity — Everyone is different, unique, special. The blending of different backgrounds, cultures and ideas make SFA a true melting pot among colleges. Such an environment can only foster understanding, which makes the learning process so much easier. Not all lessons are taught in a classroom.

Independence — It's what we finally seek to achieve for ourselves once we're away from home. Being out from under the parents' thumb can bring relief, but with it comes responsibility. College is the time to see who can truly handle the responsibility and who can't. Out of everything learned during college, no lesson is probably as important as this one may one day prove to be...

Performance — Whether it's for crowds of thousands or a more intimate audi ence, we seem to shine our brightest when the lights go up and the curtain is drawn. No matter whether the performance comes out of necessity, or for the sheer pleasure of it, if it is enjoyed by one person, then the effort was well worth it.

finding the Inspiration

Art gives accident victim a new outlook on life

Troy Houghton was only 18 years old when tragedy struck. It happened five years ago, when a diving accident in his hometown of New Summerfield left him paralyzed from the neck down.

Naturally, it was a tough realization to swallow, but Troy was determined not to let his disability get the best of him. Now 23 and a freshman at SFA, Troy has mastered something most people think requires the use of hands — art.

It took about a year for Troy to come to terms with what had happened to him. "One day something just snapped in me, and I made up my mind that I was going to do something with my life," he said.

Troy took himself off his medication for depression without the doctor's orders, and he began to draw. Only Troy didn't hold the pencil in his hand like everyone else — he held it in his mouth.

He never really took his artwork very seriously until someone suggested he take a drawing class at SFA. So he did, and he made an A. "It was funny," he said with a smile. "On the last day of the semester, the teacher made everyone draw with their pencil in their mouth. Some were actually pretty good."

Making an A in Drawing 1 inspired Troy to draw even more. He chose graphic design as his major.

It takes him a while to complete one drawing, but that's because he won't quit until he has it just the way he wants it. "The more frustrated I get, the harder I work," he said.

Beran

Troy Houghton, New Summerfield freshman, puts the finishing touches on a drawing in his apartment.

Art has done more for Troy than just get him A's at SFA. "When I am so stressed out," he said, "drawing gives me a release and helps me unwind. I can express what's on my mind through drawing."

Most of his ideas for subjects come from objects that he sees. He doesn't necessarily have a favorite subject to draw, although he does a lot of nature scenes. He also designs art tools that might accommodate his disability better. For instance, he designed a special table to sit in his lap that comes closer to his face so that he doesn't have to bend over a desk.

The key to success is being positive, Troy believes. "Whether you have a disability or not, be positive," he said. "You have to have a positive outlook on life. If you don't, you need to get over it."

Scott Miles, Kilgore senior, puts the finishing touches on his first feature film, "Dead Flesh."

Horror in the making

Senior film student produces his own feature-length flick, "Dead Flesh"

And the Oscar goes to... Scott Miles is well on his way to one day hearing that phrase announced before his own name. A senior from Kilgore, Scott just completed filming his very own full-length feature film.

Scott's love for the movie industry began back in junior high when he and his friends carried a video camera around shooting everything they could. By the time he was in high school, he knew that writing and directing films was the future for him.

After enrolling at SFA, Scott chose art with an emphasis in film as his major. In his film class, he received his first chance to make real movies.

In this film class, he wrote and directed six short films, all three to five minutes long. "They are all comedies and a little unusual," Scott said with a laugh.

Where does he get his inspiration for movie ideas? "Bad movies," he said. "I watch a lot of bad movies. It fuels my ideas because I know I can do better."

Scott sometimes takes themes from popular movies and twists them around. So far, he hasn't made anything that is based on real life instances.

In June, Scott began working on his first feature, titled "Dead Flesh." "The movie is about a high school underachiever who falls in love with the new girl who turns out to be a bloodthirsty zombie. Bodies begin to pile up, and two cheesy actors come to town to catch the zombie as a publicity stunt," Scott said.

Filming of "Dead Flesh" lasted until late August, and editing was not complete until the end of the year. From beginning to end, the movie took about six months to complete.

Even though Scott is the mastermind behind the film, he had plenty of help from friends and classmates. About 15 to 20 members of his film class helped out with the technical aspect of the filming, and another 40 friends and theatre students served as actors for him.

Scott was also lucky enough to be able to use equipment from the film class.

Early next year, Scott hopes to sell his feature.

His plans are to distribute the film all over, especially to film festivals.

Scott is anxious to begin work on his next full-length film in which he hopes to incorporate some animation.

He has high hopes that "Dead Flesh" will be a success and help him land a good job.

Scott's goals are nothing less than to be a big-time director and writer, and he plans to stop at nothing until he reaches that goal.

And then just maybe, he'll have that Oscar sitting on his shelf.

LADYJACKS GUILD

Twin transfers bring championship experience to SFA program

The SFA Ladyjacks have two identical reasons why they can claim to be one of the top programs in the state - Nicole and Jessica Guild.

The Guild twins, Flower Mound juniors, have come to SFA in search of returning the Ladyjack Basketball program to national prominence.

And by all indications, that task shouldn't be too complicated.

"I think we can bring the hard work and dedication aspect to this team and program," Nicole said. "It took a lot of dedication during our run last year, and we are both more than willing to do it again this year."

Unlike most twins however, Jessica and Nicole don't mind being linked together. Instead, they thrive on it.

"We've been forever together," Jessica said. "I can't imagine anything being any better than having her along my side every day. We've always been grouped together, it doesn't bother me one bit."

Jessica and Nicole transferred to SFA this season after spending two seasons at Tyler Junior College, where they led the Lady Apaches to the NJCAA National Championship last season. And in normal fashion, the two were named Co-MVP's to the tournament.

According to Ladyjack head coach Royce Chadwick, the two possess traits that are hard to find in one player, much less two.

"They are very rarely down," Chadwick said. "They're so vivacious and bubbling, they're an incredible asset to this program and campus."

Jessica and Nicole chose TJC over Division I teams because they were interested in only one of them, not both.

"We were recruited out of high school by a lot of D-I and D-II schools," Jessica said. "Most of the bigger schools didn't want the packaged deal of us together, so the weren't going to get either of us."

Standing at only 5'7", both have had to rely on their quickness, dedication and shooting to counteract the height disadvantage they face.

"Most people wouldn't think two short white girls from Flower Mound could do very much on the court," Nicole said.

"But everyone around us believes in us, and we have the confidence and opportunity to do some great things here at SFA."

Dallas senior finds his calling teaching scuba diving to children

Bell

Certified scuba instructor Chris Wiggins, Dallas senior, tests his sea legs in SFA's indoor pool. He's spent the past two summers in Florida teaching kids diving.

Like a fish out of water

by HOLLY SATTERWHITE • features editor

Most college students spend their summers working to earn a little extra cash or taking classes to become a few hours closer to that graduation date.

But Chris Wiggins is not like most college students. Whether he's scuba diving in the Florida Keys or sailing in the Caribbean, Chris spends his summers on the ocean.

Chris, a senior from Dallas, lived on a boat in the ocean for the past two summers teaching kids from all over the world how to scuba dive. He's been a professional scuba diver for four years now.

"My dad took me scuba diving for the first time when I was 8," Chris said. "From that first breath I took underwater, I knew it was something I wanted to do for the rest of my life."

When Chris was 15 years old, he took a five-day course in Hawaii to receive his diving certification. Then when he was 18, he received his Divemaster, which allowed him to be a professional dive guide.

That following summer, Chris received his first job dealing with scuba diving in the Florida Keys working for the Florida Seabase, which is a high adventure camp for the Boy Scouts of America. While he was there, he took the boy scouts on underwater tours of area reefs, taught marine ecology lessons, and participated in building an artificial reef.

The more Chris was scuba diving, the more he wanted to advance his certification. He received his assistant instructor's license, and the next summer he was off to the Caribbean.

By the time he was 21, Chris was a certified scuba diving instructor. He became involved with the Sail Caribbean program in which he taught about 50 kids ages 13-19 to scuba dive each summer.

"Working with kids on the ocean can test you mentally, physically, and emotionally," Chris said. "But it's an experience I wouldn't trade for the world, and it has made me who I am today." Chris also learned to sail while he was in the Caribbean, which was a rewarding experience as well.

Even though Chris doesn't plan to make scuba diving or sailing his career, he definitely plans to keep it as a hobby that he will enjoy for the rest of his life.

Let's talk about sex

Jim Conditt, Nacogdoches freshman, has traveled all over the U.S. lecturing about the importance of safe sexual practices to prevent the spread of dangerous STDs.

Oxford

Student makes it his mission to educate others about safe sex, STDs, in a frank, open way

HIV and other terrible sexually transmitted diseases have become a growing problem in the United States and especially on college campuses. Even SFA has been faced with alarming numbers of STD cases.

Many people don't realize the seriousness of STDs, but Jim Conditt does, and he's devoted many days of his life to educating people about the dangers of STDs and how they can avoid contracting a disease that could change their life forever.

Jim, a freshman at SFA, has been doing HIV/STD-related work since 1990. He believes his mother died from AIDS complications before the disease had a name, thus fueling his desire to promote AIDS awareness.

Jim in known throughout the East Texas area as a dynamic speaker who leaves little to the imagination when he is describing the effects and conditions of different diseases. One could hardly forget the graphic details he includes in his lectures.

"How are we supposed to address a problem we can't talk about?" Jim said. "I try to knock down the walls that our society has constructed, so I start talking about sex, drugs, warts, penises, anuses, you name it."

Jim gained most of his knowledge on the subject from reading and research. "I find the subject fascinating," he said, "and I've been lucky enough to have some excellent mentors such as Dr. Barbara Cordell and Dr. Jeff Myers."

Not only has Jim delivered his talks to SFA classes and East Texas high schools, but he has also spoken to Colorado, Washington, Hawaii, Georgia and Missouri State Health Departments, and he will be traveling to Montana this summer to train Indian Health Affairs outreach workers. He has spoken at several state and national conferences, as well.

Jim worked for Health Horizons for almost 10 years and came into close contact with many HIV patients. He has lost close friends to AIDS.

Jim has seen first hand what these diseases can do to people, and he's determined to do his best to prevent as many cases as possible. "My main goal is to get everyone with risks checked out," he said. "Days of procrastination can cost years of life, so I stress testing heavily."

Although Jim has children to take care of and studying to do, he still makes time to conduct workshops and gather facts so tha people can become more educated about STDs. He plans to earn his doctoral degree from UT and hopes to be lecturing from an SFA podium one day.

He will continue to educate students and others about the dangers of STDs and what they can do to prevent them, but he sincerely hopes that one day, his lectures will no longer be needed.

Alumni Association

The SFA Alumni Association exists to promote the welfare and spirit of SFA by enlisting alumni to become members of the organization and encouraging their support of the association's activities for raising funds for the SFA Scholarship Fund.

The SFA Alumni Association and Alumni Foundation scholarship endowments total more than $16 million. More than 600 students at the university were aided by about $700,000 in alumni scholarships this year.

The SFA Alumni Association sponsors the university's Homecoming celebration, during which approximately $170,000 was raised from activities such as the Duck Dash, Silent Auction, televised auction, benefit raffle and golf tournament. The traditional Friday night Homecoming events were reorganized into Lumberjack Bash and moved to the Fredonia Hotel. The evening featured performances from SFA entertainers such as The Original Cast, cheerleaders, pom squad, Twirl-o-Jacks and the Kappa Alpha Psi steppers.

The organization is governed by the officers and directors of the association and is headed by Dr. Miles McCall, vice president for alumni affairs.

One of the biggest highlights from this year is the second $1.5 million installment of a history-making individual gift from the estate of the late SFA history professor Dr. Vera Lea Dugas. The $3 million donation is the largest gift from an individual to the SFA Alumni Association. Funds from the gift will create at least 20 to 30 new scholarships through the SFA Alumni Association.

Additional highlights from this year include the association's co-sponsorship of Lumberjack Alley with the SFA Department of Athletics and Nacogdoches Charter Chapter and the growth of the Charter Chapters program. Lumberjack Alley returned for a second year and is becoming one of SFA's many great traditions. Lumberjack Alley is located in the commuter parking lot across from William R. Johnson Coliseum and provides spaces for individual tailgate parties on game days. Pre-game festivities include live music, fellowship with friends and great food sizzling on grills. About 50 commercial and individual parties were held during the Homecoming weekend at Lumberjack Alley.

The Charter Chapter program is continuing to grow with 10 official chapters organized in Texas (Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Nacogdoches, Lufkin, Waco, Tyler, Longview, Beaumont, San Antonio) and interest generated for Charter Chapters in Illinois, Louisiana, California, Georgia and in the New England area.

The association's website (www.sfaalumni.com) features an e-commerce section where alumni can purchase SFA merchandise or association memberships.

All SFA students are encouraged to become members of the SFA Alumni Association. Joining the SFA Alumni Association is the best way to keep in touch with the activities and events happening at SFA.

You'll discover that being a member of the association is rewarding, valuable, and most of all, fun.

Simply pick up the phone and call us at 1-800-765-1534 or 936-468-3407, email us at alumni@sfasu.edu or visit us online at www.sfaaalumni.com.

Beauty and Brawns

SGA allows students to showcase talent

By BRIAN GRANT and MEGAN OLECKI
Stone Fort Editor Pine Log Reporter

N'Sync and Macy Gray came away winners of the second annual Beauty and Brawns Competition held Wednesday, Nov. 15 at the Anex.

Mike Amos, Nacgodoches junior, and Jessamine Mitchell, College Station, senior, won the coveted titles after a somewhat sparse competition.

Nine entrants vied for the titles, down from 32 from last year.

Amos clinched his win after he and a group of friends performed an authentically choreographed routine to an N'Sync medley. Mitchell lip synced to Macy Gray's "I try."

Contestants competed in three phases - school spirit, talent and evening wear/question and answer.

The purple and white were well represented during the spirit competition, with cheerleading skits, lumberjack impersonators and the phrase "Back that axe up," repeated numerous times.

No original talents were displayed during the talent portion, but lots of lip syncing took to the stage, parodying acts from "I will survive," performed by Joe Best, Coppell freshman, to a Janet and Michael Jackson medley performed by Wynter Patterson, Houston sophomore.

Contestants strutted their stuff during the evening wear/question and answer competition, donning their finest "after-5" wear and trying to come up with intelligent answers for questions posed by emcees Tommy Newton and Christy Famulari, Channelview senior and Miss SFA.

In response to the question "If you had to pick a new school song, what would it be and why?" Mitchell answered simply "Back that axe up." Amos was asked "If you could pick a school slogan, what would it be and why?" His answer had a little more depth: "SFA - School for Color Blindness. There's too much hatin' going on. We need to come together and show more diversity."

To get the crowd involved, as if the $1.50 drafts/ $1.00 refills didn't help, Chris Sam, SGA president and Beaumont senior, instigated a dance competition among audience members and an SFA trivia contest, boasting such questions as "What does the 'F' in Stephen F. Austin stand for?" and "Who is SFA's interim president?" The prizes were T-shirts, koozies, keychains and Lumberjack cups.

Beauty and Brawns is a beauty and spirit pageant designed to get students more involved with the school, Ron Johnson, Houston freshman senator, said.

"Students are used to hearing about bills and amendments, but SGA has a fun side," Johnson said. "This is the first step of things to come, and for SGA to be a more active organization.

"This is the first year we have students who are not part of a greek organization," he said. "Last year it was mostly SGA members. This year we have had more cooperation with students," he said.

Winners received gift certificates and prizes from local businesses.

All-girl cheer group created to keep talent at SFA

By Scott Davis
Assistant Sports Editor

SFA athletic teams have a new group to cheer for them on the side lines — the newly created all-girls cheerleading squad. "The all-girl cheerleaders were created to help keep more talent here at SFA, rather than having the girls who did not make the coed team go to another school," Pepe Bridges, coach, said.

The all-girls squad cheers at all home volleyball games, football games and take turns cheering at the home basketball games. The coed team does more stunts, but the all-girls squad does more spiriting (cheering to the fans). Currently the all-girls squad members do not receive scholarships.

When the all-girls squad was formed over the summer, Bridges, a graduate student and former SFA cheerleader, was asked to coach.

"I love the all-girls squad. I get to do a lot more than the coed squad I was on at another college," squad member Emily Millor said.

The cheerleaders will be competing in the national competition this year in the Division I category. That is one division above the one in which the coed squad will be competing.

Bridges said the success of the all-girls squad depends on how well it is received by the fans.

First ever Turkey Trot proves to be a success

By MATT LAWRENCE
Organizations Editor

On a cold and drizzling Saturday morning in November, more than 50 people showed up for the first annual Turkey Trot, a 5k run and a 10 mile bike sponsored by the SFA Alliance.

The temperature was hovering at 34 degrees and drizzling and all entrants were dressed in their warmest running clothing, and until race time, the majority of them were bundled up trying to keep warm.

The route of the race went around campus. It started and ended at the theatre building and continued to go infront of the UC to Starr Apartments. It then turned to North Street and continued along and went down East College past the East Collge Cafeteria and Steen hall. It turned down Wilson Drive past the Intramural fields and back onto North Street and soon after, it turned by the vacant president's house, and ended up back at the theatre building.

The winners recieved a medal, and also a gift certificate to an area sponsors resturant.

Kicker Ryan Rossner scores big in class and on the field

By Chris Anderson
Pine Log Sports Editor

Ryan Rossner says he doesn't feel any pressure being put on him. For a freshman who has a perfect 1600 on the SAT and kicked a game-tying field goal in his first collegiate attempt, that statement might be called slightly ironic.

Rossner, a freshman place-kicker from Metairie, LA, comes to SFA as the only athlete in Lumberjack history to have scored a 1600 on the SAT.

"No one has really ever put too much pressure on me," Rossner said. "I feel really comfortable here so far, and I think this team has the potential to be very good."

Rossner's first field goal attempt came with a little over five seconds left in the Lumberjacks opening game against Central Oklahoma. Trailing 31-28, Rossner booted the 21-yarder to send the game into overtime, allowing SFA to eventually notch the come-from-behind win, 38-31.

"I really wasn't very nervous during the game," Rossner said. "I just wanted to go out and hit the ball like I know I'm capable of."

Rossner also was recruited by Bucknell University in Pennsylvania, and several schools in and around Louisiana. He said his choice to come to SFA was an easy one.

"I liked the campus a lot and the people here were so friendly," Rossner said. "Everyone on the team seemed to get along with each other, and wanted to win.

"I just thought it was a place where I could come to play and win, and be happy doing it."

It's hard to believe that Rossner was an All-State selection his senior year, and he didn't play football until his sophomore year in high school.

"I was a soccer player, and the football coach came to me and asked if I wanted to kick for the team," Rossner said. "It never really has been that hard for me.

Oxford
Ryan Rossner practices his kick for the next gam

Rossner believes there is a lot more challenges ahea of him.

Still, he just wants to be known for helping out a championship football team.

"I feel a lot more comfortable here than I did in hig school," said Rossner. "Coach Santiago is a really goo coach, and has helped me relax and keep gainin confidence."

"I think this team will do great," Rossner said "We've got some really great players who are all to gether and care about nothing but winning.

"I'm just going to go out and enjoy myself, and do my best to help this team win."

The Day of Greek Events

Steps 2000

ΔZ ΚΣ ΑΤΩ ΑΓΡ ΣΑΜ ΠΚΑ

Steps 2000

They came with flags, posters and passion. IFC rushees gathered outside of the Ausitin building chanting wildly, dancing and screaming. Inside the building about 200 men waited, painted and eager to run down the steps of the Austin building and in to their waiting brethren.

"Basically it's a way to introduce the school and everybody to the new members," Patrick Scott, IFC president, said. "It's a little bit more exciting than saying, 'here, you're in this fraternity.'"

Despite rain, humidity and heat, the Greeks remained excited. The sororities, there to offer moral support to their male counterparts, waved hand-made signs, chanted, yelled and took pictures.

"They're showing the school-wide Greek involvement," Scott said of the girls.

Above the din of Greek cries and clamorous pop music, each male was named in alphabetical order, after which he ran down the steps - completing the final part of rush as well as continuing a 30-year SFA tradition.

But contrary to its outward appearance, chaos did not reign.

"It's really organized," Scott said. "We started about 9:00 in the morning setting everything up. We should run really smooth, we've had a successful rush so far, no serious problems or anything."

Scott's words proved true as no injuries were reported.

Although by 12:45 p.m. the event was through at school, Steps continued for the rest of the day.

"After Steps most of the houses have some type of gathering for the brothers for a Steps-day party," Scott said. "Then at night most of the chapters have a formal or something."

"I wouldn't trade Steps for anything in the world," Lanny Brown, Ft. Worth Freshman and Kappa Alpha recruit said. "I had a blast."

New House on the Block

The subdivision known as Sorority Row is now officially the subdivision formerly known as Sorority Row. After ten years of planning and organization, the Phi Delta Theta house is nearly completed at the once female-only location.

The house, which measures over 8,000 sq. ft., is the first fraternity house built from scratch and will house up to twelve men in two autonomous living units. With currently about 45 to 50 men in the organization, Phi Delts hope the new house is in a location that will attract a lot of attention.

"We're the only fraternity house out there with all the sorority girls, so the location should definitely attract recruits,"Johnathan Matovich, Houston senior and Phi Delt said. "The house was definitely supposed to be done by October or September. But even if it's not, we'll still take guys out there to see it. It's almost done. Basically all they're doing is interior work."

Matovich said of the sorority girls he talked to, none were opposed to the new house.

"I thought it was kind of cool that sororities and fraternities would be closer together," Delta Zeta house resident Jodi Jones, Waco junior, said. "I think it would be cool if more fraternity houses moved out here so the fraternity and sorority houses would be closer together like at other schools."

Another reason is because the house is alcohol-free.

"Too many houses would cause a problem with the parties," Zeta Tau Alpha house resident Crystal Dew, Baytown junior, said.

"It's great there was enough alumni support to build a house," Kelley Summers, Tri Delta sponsor, said. "I think it would be great if more frat houses moved in. I think this will start to bring the Greek community together and build a strong future for the community."

How the search for SFA's next president unfolded...

Dec. 3

Dr. Dan Angel accepted the presidency of Marshall University through a live Internet broadcast.

Jan. 24

Regents voted to hire a national search firm; Dr. Roland Smith, vice president for business affairs, was named the interim president.

April 15

Regents hired Harold Webb Associates Ltd. as the search firm to generate a list of applicants for screening.

May 1

Regents chair Jimmy Murphy appointed a screening committee of faculty, staff, students, alumni and community members.

Sept. 11

The committee hoped to narrow the list of 130 applicants down to 10, then to 5 by October.

Sept. 14

Faculty Senate Chair Dr. Kandy Stahl announced the pool was narrowed to 10-12, who were being interviewed in Houston.

Sept. 21

Committee narrowed field to 3 — Dr. Nicholas Henry, Dr. John Owens and Dr. Charles Scifres.

Sept. 28

A schedule for interviewing the candidates was set for the first 3 weeks of October.

Oct. 2

Owens withdrew from the running, citing confusion over the date of naming the president.

Oct. 5

Scifres visisted the campus, interviewed with regents and attended various receptions with officials and students.

Oct. 9

Henry was scheduled to begin his campus visit this day. He met with officals and students before being interviewed.

Oct. 12

Henry told "The Pine Log" he was excited about the opportunity to be president of SFA.

Oct. 19

The Faculty Senate sent a letter to the Regents favoring Scifres for the job.

Oct. 30

Regents interviewed the candidates, would announce their decision the following day. Stahl wanted more choices.

Nov. 2

Regents failed to elect either Henry or Scifres, Murphy resigned in anger from the board.

Nov. 6

Smith said he would retain the interim president position as well as his vice president's seat.

Nov. 9

The Faculty Senate announced it opposed hiring a new search firm. They favored using only a committee.

Nov. 27

Regents appointed a new screening committee and would select a search firm by Jan. 8. The process begins all over again.

Ab Spelunking

By HOLLY SATTERWHITE • Features Editor

Imagine dropping 360 feet into a dark pit in Mexico with 80 or 90 pounds of equipment on your back.

Too scary to imagine? Just ask Dr. Francis E. Abernethy, who once held the world record for a spelunking drop into the deepest pit in the Western Hemisphere known at the time. Abernethy, 73, known by his friends as "Ab," could be called Nacogdoches' own Indiana Jones.

Although he is now retired, he was once an English professor here. He always made time, however, to travel to distant countries to take on every adventure imaginable — such as cave exploring.

Abernethy first became interested in caves through his studies of herpetology, the study of reptiles. "It was the summer of '58 when two others and I were making a big snake collection trip around Sierra Madre Oriental in Mexico. We were on a banana plantation when we ran across a big pit, otherwise known as a sotano," he said.

He and his crew, having little cave exploration experience at the time, tried to get the Texas Spelunkers to go and check the sotano out. "But they wouldn't do it. So we gathered some equipment and made the 360-foot drop ourselves," Abernethy said. "We went down with horrible equipment — we didn't know anything about caves."

On one expedition to Barranca del Cobre, Mexico in 1962, there were no roads for driving. The only way to get in was to ride on the top of trains that ran through the area.

Carelessness could be fatal, Abernethy said, because at any time you may find yourself creeping along ledges, crawling through holes, or leaping from one drop off to another. "I once got trapped in a cave in Xilitla, Mexico, for eight to 10 hours because the lines got fouled up," he said.

Other than being trapped, Abernethy doesn't recall any scary situations. "I was always pretty much in control," he said. "I tried not to get into places where I would be scared."

Just a glance around Abernethy's office can tell you that this man has seen almost all there is to see — from rattlesnake skins to antique guns, bee hives to cannon balls, cattle skulls to Egyptian statues.

Abernethy has even found precious artifacts during his cave explorations. "I was in a cave, sitting by the water's edge, smoking a cigarette. I looked up and saw a green fragment of stone about five feet in front of me on the other side of the water.

"I went across to pick it up and noticed another stone of the same material. I found one more stone, all three being pieces of jade.

"I finally put them all together and realized they formed a pendant with a face carved on it," he said. "I wondered what in the sam hill could make someone just leave it there."

Although Abernethy hasn't been cave exploring since his last expedition to Guatemala and Belize in 1984, he still manages to find adventure. He recently made a trip to Europe and went scuba diving in Cozumel.

Abernethy is the executive secretary and editor of the Texas Folklore Society. In addition to that, he plays the bass fiddle in the East Texas String Ensemble.

Nude man takes golf cart for unauthorized spin

Officers were dispatched to Lumberjack Alley in reference to a nude individual and arrested him on charges of public intoxication. The man, an SFA alumnus who resides in Dallas, allegedly commandeered a golf cart and drove it around the parking lot while nude. University Police Chief Tony Hill said someone reported seeing a streaker.

"He drove south in the parking lot, made a U-turn and then came back toward a group of young men," Hill told The Daily Sentinel."I contacted the man and placed him under arrest."

Hill said the suspect asked if he could stop to put his shorts on before being transported to the John Lightfoot Law Enforcement Center.

Welcome Party

All photos by Student Development

The first Jack Camp for incoming freshmen took place in July of 2000, when students preselected from the Orientation sessions boarded a bus bound for a camp in Livingston. Patterned after the Texas A&M Aggie traditional Fish Camp, Jack Camp was initiated to provide incoming freshmen the opportunity to make friends before entering college and to learn a little bit more about what the college experience will be about.

Parents' Day draws large crowd

All photos by Public Affairs

Despite coming earlier than years past, Parents' Day, sponsored by the Residence Hall Association, drew a record number of attendees, some 2,500. Many activities were planned throughout the day for parents to participate in, culminating with the Jacks football game against Texas A&M Commerce. Here, parents are shown shopping in the University Center Bookstore to pick up some SFA merchandise before returning home.

...Let it snow

Let it snow; let it snow! Most people thought it would be a cold day in, well, Nacogdoches, before it ever snowed here. But residents woke up to a couple of inches of the frosty white powder covering the ground on New Year's Day. The overnight transformation into a winter wonderland sent area kids out to build snowmen (or women), to sled down hills such as the nice, steep ones at Homer Bryce Stadium and to instigate impromptu snowball fights. The last time the area had seen this much snow accumulation was in 1984.

Graduation 2000

Graduation is the one day to which we all look forward. After all, it is the ultimate reason we're here. Whether you're receiving a bachelor's, master's, or doctoral degree, the turning of the tassle signifies a rite of passage like no other: The end of school and the beginning of the rest of your life.

(Right) A student is awarded his diploma by Dr. Marlin Young, dean of business. (Below, left) Students walk down the steps of William R.Johnson Coliseum from the concourse to the floor. (Below, right) Graduates listen to the speech of guest speaker Todd Staples.

First educational doctorates awarded

Public Affairs

Ray Deason, Peggy Barnes Gill, Jeanie Gresham, Sherry Kenner, Timothy Jones and Sharon Ross (not in order pictured) became the first recipients of SFA's new educational doctorate degrees. The milestone at December 2000 commencement ceremonies marked an end to studies the six began in 1997.

Mr. SFA

Charles Hueber, Cushing senior, was selected to serve as the 2000-2001 Mr. SFA. He served as president and as chair of various committees for the Student Activities Association. He is a member of the debate team, the honors student association, the resident apartment association and the rugby club. He has served as an orientation leader and as a student instructor for SFA 101. His community involvement includes participating in food drives for Godtel, the adult literacy center drive, United Way, Read America, Texas War on Drugs, and he is an assistant scout leader. He has made the dean's list each semester at SFA.

Miss SFA

Cristi Famulari, Channelview senior, was selected to serve as the 2000-2001 Miss SFA. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority, the Student Foundation Association, the SFA Ambassadors and the American Marketing Association. She has served as an orientation leader and as a student instructor for SFA 101. Her community involvement includes participating in the Special Olympics, adopt-a-family, Head Start and the empty stocking fund. She is in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, the Alpha Chi and Phi Eta Sigma honor societies and the Order of Omega. She has made the president's and dean's lists.

Cristi Famulari

I'm actually surprised right now if you're reading this, because earlier on in the semester, I had serious doubts if there was even going to be a Stone Fort this year. However, after a slow start, we actually got this thing done.

Many of you probably have no clue how much work actually goes into this book, and I couldn't even attempt to explain it in this limited space. Suffice it to say that I and many other staff members have sacrificed sleep, social lives and school work so that you'll have a great book to enjoy when it's all said and done.

My thanks have to go to Julie and Pat, for making me do this. I have to thank my staff for putting up with me, my indecisiveness and my less-than-great leadership and still producing a great book. On that same note, more thanks than I really have to give go to our photo editor, Marc Oxford, who could pull shots out of thin air at the last possible moment, which was mostly when I needed them. I shudder to think how this book might have turned out without him.

There are always complaints — a name misspelled here, the wrong picture there — but this is a learning experience, and after all, we are only human. It is my hope that despite whatever might come out wrong, all of our hard work won't be for nothing, and that the book lives up to its billing as well as your standards. Happy reading.
